

APPENDIX F

SUBMISSION POLICIES FOR SITE PLAN AND SUBDIVISION APPLICATIONS*

1. The first step in gaining approval for a nonresidential development project is to make a formal application in writing for a ZONING PERMIT. Attach to this permit your formal plans.

2. Within thirty (30) days (usually five (5) working days), the development office staff will respond with what approvals are necessary. Once it is determined that all zoning requirements can be met, you may make a formal application to be scheduled on the next available agenda.

3. If zoning requirements cannot be met, you must obtain variances or special exceptions from the zoning board of adjustment BEFORE making application to the planning board.

4. Development office staff will review your application (application form, plans, abutters list, other state or local permit approvals, bonding, etc.) to determine if it is complete before scheduling it for planning board review.

5. Once the development office staff has determined that your plan has met all requirements to be considered COMPLETE, the planning board must officially vote to accept it as such. Once they do this, the board must vote within ninety (90) days to grant or deny your preliminary or final application.

6. If you choose to seek preliminary approval first, you must reapply for final review after receiving your preliminary approval. We will not automatically put an application on for final without a formal application properly filed by the deadline date.

Editor's note—Printed herein are the submission policies for site plan and subdivision applications in effect in the city on November 8, 1989. Style and capitalization have been made uniform. Obviously misspelled words have been corrected without notation. Words added for clarification have been added in brackets. Amendments have been included and are indicated by a history note immediately following the amended section.

7. If your proposed plans fall within one (1) of the guidelines for a site plan waiver (see site plan regulations for specifics), you may decide to apply for a waiver from having a registered surveyor prepare your site plan. Keep in mind that this waiver only relieves the applicant from having a surveyor prepare the plan. All of the same requirements of a formal site plan apply to a waiver plan. A site plan waiver plan must be submitted prior to being placed on the agenda, and will be reviewed by staff for completeness.

8. If you wish to subdivide your land, your first step will be to make application for subdivision on the official application form and submit this, with your plan, to the development office for review, as stated above.

PLEASE NOTE THAT THERE WILL NO LONGER BE SEPARATE DATES FOR PLAN DEADLINES AND APPLICATION DEADLINES!

We encourage applicants to be in touch with our office frequently during this review process. We are available to assist you in any way. To avoid confusion, we ask that you designate one (1) contact person for your project if you are working with a number of individuals connected to your project.
